GHANA: -

Actress Moesha Boduong has stayed true to her words after she served noticed to Ghanaians that, they should watch out for more bikini photos after successfully dealing with her stretch marks.

Well, the 'waist training diva' is back with a set of hot bikini shots which she posted on her Instagram page while on vacation in Cape Town, South Africa.

In an interview with Dr. Pounds on Hitz FM last December, Moesha admitted that she was forced to stop posting bikini photos on her social media platforms because of insults from her critics.

Moesha was last year unveiled as the brand ambassador for a new stretch marks product called the V-Mark.

According to the actress, using the product has paid off greatly as she is currently enjoying every bit of her vacation, flaunting her stretch mark free skin.
